Allergen information

Burger King's priority is to ensure our customers with food allergies and intolerances have accurate information to make safe choices from our menu. Where any of the 14 specified allergens are present we will tell you. When one of our suppliers reports they have identified a risk cross contamination in their production line we will tell you the product may contain an allergen. Burger King restaurants have controls in place to reduce the risk of cross contamination in our own kitchens such as separate storage areas, separate utensils and cleaning equipment for products contain allergens. In common with other catering operations, our kitchens are open environments and there is always a risk of cross contamination. Hence we cannot guarantee any product is entirely free from any allergen and customers with severe food allergies should take this information into account. Although we take great care to remove bones from our meat, poultry and fish products, some small bones may still be present.

+ Allergens A planned ingredient which is definitely present.

? May contain Our supplier has told us, after carrying out an allergen risk assessment, there is a foreseeable risk of cross contamination of this allergen to the finished product i.e. it is not a planned ingredient but it may be present in the finished product due to factory cross contamination

Fried Foods* Although we have separate fryer vats for different products, they have a shared system for oil filtration. This means there is a risk of cross contamination of allergens when the oil passes through the filter. If you have an intolerance or are allergic to gluten, soya, fish, egg, milk, celery, mustard, sesame or sulphur dioxide, we advise that you do not choose any foods which are deep fried.

All of buns are toasted in the same toaster. They all contain gluten from wheat and some contain milk and sesame. If you are allergic to any of these ingredients you are advised not to choose any of our sandwich products with a bun.
